SPEAKER Feliciano Belmonte Jr. yesterday cautioned House members against rushing the deliberations on two impeachment complaints against Ombudsman Merceditas Gutierrez.

Belmonte said it would be a bad idea to fast-track the complaints filed by Supreme Court Justice Renato Corona and the Philippine Bar Association.

He said the justice committee should not be pressured and should be allowed to deliberate on the complaints at its own pace. "Let it be heard properly and let people be given the chance to explain," he said. "I don't think fast-tracking is a good idea," he said.

PET orders Comelec to secure ballots cast for VP

By Mike Dela

THE SUPREMACY COURT sitting as the First Division (en banc) yesterday ordered the Commission on Elections to "procure and safeguard the integrity" of the ballot boxes, bank counters and keys and other election paraphernalia used in the May 2010 second round of the presidential election.

President Joseph E. Estrada and granted the separate motions of Biong and his two presidential candidates, former Senator Manuel Rotor II, for appropriate protection orders pursuant to Rule 309 of the Rules of the PET.

The PET also ordered the Comelec to secure the list of voters with voting records, books of names and other documents and paraphernalia.

In a press conference, Supreme Court spokesperson Maria Marjorie said that the petition denied the preliminary hearing sought by Biong because a preliminary conference will be able to hold.

The petitioned on May 7, 2010 by lawyer (Enrique) Estrada, approved by the Supreme Court, ordered the Comelec to secure the list of voters with voting records, books of names and other documents and paraphernalia used in the May 2010 second round of the presidential election.

THE DEPARTMENT of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) is kicking off the month on the protection of the ozone layer.

It will kick off the celebration of Ozone Month with a campaign to test the absorbency of air conditioners, in checking those used by government officials.

The ozone layer protects the earth from dangerous excessive ultraviolet radiation. In the 1980s, holes in the ozone layer were detected over the South and North Poles, prompting nations to phase out the use of fluorocarbon and chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) refrigerants or propellants. Fluorocarbon molecules in the upper atmosphere as a result of their use are thought to lead to a depletion of the ozone layer.

Secretary Renato Paje, in an attempt by reducing the use of refrigerants of the DENR, is testing to check their status and absorbency.

The government has been limiting the use of vehicles with air conditioning units that contain CFCs, chemicals that are believed to damage the ozone layer.

Owners of vehicle models prior to 1999 are required to use environmentally friendly refrigerants in their vehicles, prohibiting units below that are allowed to move their use.

This is in line with the Kyoto and Montreal Protocols, which are international agreements to reduce greenhouse gas emissions in order to avert global warming.

Puerto Princesa City Mayor Eduardo Magallon, Bureau Secretary Alberto Uson and DENR Press Holdings President Henry S. Delacruz say they teamed up for the Puerto Princesa Subterranean River National Park (PPNSR) "Ozone Month" (O3M) testing campaign for the month of September. The event was held at the DENR Operations, Field and Airs Complex, on Aug. 11. The underground river is one of the Seven Natural Wonders of the World.

Champions of the Earth nominations now open

MANILA—Nominations are now officially open for the 2011 Champions of the Earth, the United Nations' top environmental award.

The award seeks to recognize the achievements of inspirational leaders, scientists and, more importantly, those who have shown determination and outstanding commitment toward achieving a cleaner, greener and more prosperous future.

Decision winners of the award include past winners and presidents, scientists and leaders of non-governmental organizations and philosophers.

The profile from across the world is open to all who are committed to the cause.

Nominations will be accepted until Oct. 31 and can be made via the awards website www.unep.org/champions/.

The UN will select a winner for each of these categories: policy leadership, science and innovation, entrepreneurial vision, and inspiration and action.

Each nominee will receive $40,000 in cash and a commemorative trophy as an award of recognition and praise.

Move on, science chief urges ex-Pagasa head

PRCCEI CEO, the modular bureau chief who was fired by President Aquino last month, should "move on," said Science and Technology Secretary Ilan Morones.

"This was after 10 years and he has been in the Science Commission on climate change and science and technology policy to present his role as the 'Science' director that was the in-charge of his sector."

He got the ex chief for Aquino was inspired by the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) before he actually took the path of Typhoon Saungguang July 13.

Pagasa had predicted that the typhoon would hit Southern Luzon, but it instead descended into Western Manila, killing 104 people and causing massive power outages in the capital and neighboring provinces.

"When typhoon Saungguang hit, the Science Commission (SCC) (National Disaster and Coordinating Council) and PRCCEI (Department of National Defense) were just two weeks on the job and they were still trying to cope with the disaster's possible aftermath. It's really good if people who are moved still could really move to any given time with a new president. Things can move on as they should, I think, with an organization that should function in that manner in a professional way," Nils told the Inquirer.

Glenn and media shy

Nils, who was reportedly dismissed and assigned to the Department of Science and Technology (DOST), looked glum at the hearing, refusing to talk to media and avoiding eye contact with Morones.

Morones, who has recommended Glenn's dismissal, a DOST undersecretary, to replace Nils as Pagasa administrator, said "Pagasa has a long way to go."

Morones said the joint commission that Pagasa could make do with P700 million in equipment upgrade to boost its weather forecasting capabilities.

Nils, Pagasa's science, said the Science Commission, said the Science Commission was created by the Commission on Audit and the Department of Budget and Management that a department expense account to set up for Pagasa to help it cope with the quick expenditures of its equipment (over three years) and ensure that the weather bureau has world-class equipment.

Aquino said the Science Commission would look into Morones' proposal to build a water reservoir close to the Plaza Chair as a measure to prevent flooding in Metro Manila.

Sen. Loren Legarda, the climate change committee chair, said Pagasa and the DOST should work of projects from international agencies like the San Juan National Geomagnetic Observatory to boost equipment and personnel in the Science Commission.

P-Noy wants swift justice for victims of massacre the daughter of 37 people, including at least 10 female youth.

Quezon City Judge Justine Soler Reyes was to have opened the trial on Wednesday last, but it had to be held on Sept. 12, according to the justice secretary, after the victim's father had traveled all the way from Mindanao.

In a press briefing, Coloma said the President intended to be on hand to help the families and the justice system. He also pointed out that the trial was not a trial of the justice system, but a trial of the justice system. He also pointed out that the trial was not a trial of the justice system, but a trial of the justice system.

To further illustrate the President's "strong determination" to bring justice to the victims, Coloma said one of the speakers at the Feb. 25 rally marking the anniversary of the 1990 Peoples Power Revolution, which he himself attended, was Remya Balmora, whose husband was one of the media workers killed in the massacre.

In a press conference, Supreme Court Administrator Milan Manzano declared before the assembly that the President had been "inspired" by the trial. "We intend to be the witness and the witness of the judge on how that case will proceed," Manzano said, adding that he wanted to clarify that the trial was not being delayed by "the judge's will."

Manzano said the Supreme Court was maintaining its "independence."

"We don't see any need to be involved with the decisions of the justice of the judge in this case... there is a competent judge," he said.

Slow pace of justice

Coloma said that even when he was still working for the justice system, he had "observed" the slow pace of justice when it came to the victims of the massacre. "I was not a lawyer," he said, "but I was a witness to the slow pace of justice when it came to the victims of the massacre."

For example, Coloma said, it would take six years to get a case from the justice system. "I was not a lawyer," he said, "but I was a witness to the slow pace of justice when it came to the victims of the massacre."

He added, "We can only express a view that would probably be the best of the justice system, but it would not be a trial of the justice system, but a trial of the justice system."

Asked about the remark of Justice Secretary Lito Lina, Coloma said that the Lina was not a trial of the justice system, but a trial of the justice system. "I was not a lawyer," he said, "but I was a witness to the slow pace of justice when it came to the victims of the massacre."

1M poor families to get gov't cash aid schools must receive dollars, by treatment to last into a year.

Started under Avey

The aid was established by the 10th Congress of a $400 million loan for the expansion of the National Food-for-School Program, which was a joint effort.

Since the program started under the 10th Congress administration in 2008, about 900,000 families have received cash incentives from the government, the aid.

"This is very timely as the 10th Congress (Department of Social Welfare and Development) will increase the number of families receiving monthly cash grants to 2.5 million by the end of 2011. This additional funding will go a long way in expanding the reach and coverage of the program," Tullano said.

The program is aimed at encouraging the poorest families to send their children to school and enroll regular health care.

Most vulnerable families

By giving cash incentives, the government and the NFA help to ensure the healthiest, most vulnerable families receive cash incentives to send their children to school and enroll regular health care.

"Conditional cash transfer programs have proven to be an effective way of keeping children healthier and at school. These programs help families break free from the cycle of poverty," Tullano said.

According to ADM data, one in five Filipino children does not go to primary school. Of these schools, three in 10 are struggling to stay open. These children also do not receive preventive health care.

$12,000 families

The Philippines is considered to be a "developing" country, with cash transfer programs, which are also implemented in Brazil, Indonesia, and New York City.

Since the program was established in 2008, the government has spent about P2.5 billion for nearly 900,000 families.

The NFA will provide direct financial support to 100,000 families to be sent to school.

The new beneficiaries should receive their cash grants every month.

ADM officials said they approved the loan—estimated at about P15 billion—because they saw that the program was helping poor families.

THE HON. SECRETARY LEILA DE LIMA

Secretary of Justice
Department of Justice
Paco Plaza, Manila

Dear Secretary De Lima,

"My people will abide in a peaceful habitation, in secure dwellings, and in quiet resting places" (Isaiah 32:18)

September 8, 2009 was a day of gloom for the people of God of the Diocese of Catamban as well as for the Peace Advocates of Samar. This was the day when Fr. Cecilio Lucero, the Parish Priest of Catubig and Human Rights Desk Officer of the Diocese, was brutally ambushed along the National Highway of San Jose, Northern Samar while on his way to his parish. Since then, various civil society and church groups came out to manifest strong condemnation of the gruesome murder, and jointly call for its immediate investigation and resolution.

We appreciate very well your coming over to Calbayog City last year to conduct a Public Hearing on the series of Human Rights violations in Samar, as well as your kind attention given to Fr. Lucero's case, in which you immediately recommended the filing of the case at the Department of Justice. Since then there has been a preliminary investigation to the case at the DOJ in Manila.

Few weeks from now, it will be a year since the incident happened. And as time passes by, we cannot but have some apprehensions and doubts as to whether we can obtain justice for Fr. Cecilio Lucero especially that some local "powers that be," whom we perceive to be with the side of the Respondents, continue to exert every effort possible to derail or distort the case even at the Prosecution level.

In view of this apprehensions, we, the Assembly of the East Visayas Ecumenical Bishops Forum, a gathering of multi-sectarian and inter-denominational Peace Advocates in Samar, Leyte and Misaki, would like to make an appeal to your good office for the just and speedy resolution of the case.

We humbly manifest our appeal to you, Madam Secretary, for we know very well your good sense of fairness and justice, as well as your personal commitment to the case where this matter was still under your care at the CHR.

With our continued prayers for you and your advocates, and for the interest of Peace and Justice for those who are deprived, we remain

Respectfully yours,

The Honorable Secretary LEILA DE LIMA
Department of Justice

Madam Secretary,

This has reference to the case of one of my priests, Fr. Cecilio P. Lucero of the Diocese of Catamban, who was brutally murdered along the National Highway of San Jose, Northern Samar last September 8, 2009 while on his way back to his parish to celebrate the Sunday Mass. We have already brought this case to your attention when you went to Calbayog City last year to investigate the spate of killings in Samar while you were still Chair of the Commission on Human Rights.

Former Congressman Wensar Lucero, brother of the late Fr. Lucero, has filed a case before the Department of Justice last March against those who allegedly murdered and carried out the barbaric murder. There have already been around four hearings for arraignment in the prosecutor's office in Manila. I have also been informed that there have been attempts by some of the accused to have the case transferred to Northern Samar where they feel they can exert influence over the courts. So, too, is their delaying tactic to keep postponing the trial.

It will surely be a year now since the gruesome incident happened and the people and clergy of the Diocese of Catamban keep on wondering as to whether this high-profile murder will just end up on the list of unsolved killings in the province for the culture of impunity to reign unabated.

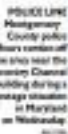

We were given much hope with your appointment as Secretary of Justice because of your unswerving effort as Chair of the Commission on Human Rights. Now we know that under your administration, you will expedite the prosecution and trial so as to resolve the case with dispatch and obtain justice for Fr. Cecilio Lucero as expected by our people from this no-nonsense government of President Noyen Aquino.

I therefore, make this direct appeal to your good office and the Department of Justice for resolute attention and swift action on this lagging case.

With gratitude to you and with my every good wish and blessing, I remain

Sincerely yours in Christ,

+ EMMANUEL C. TRANCE, O.D.
Bishop of Catamban

"A message arrived, he pulled his gun, and a shot was taken," Montgomery County police chief Tom Killian said earlier.

Active alone

A late reinforcement affidavit, speaking on conditions of anonymity because the investigations were ongoing, said authorities had identified an explosive device on the gunman's body detonated in a cloud of smoke when police shot him, Manger said. Police were trying to determine whether two buses and two individuals the gunman had carried into the building also contained explosives.

Red Arise! I am at the Rally ground

Police and firefighters on Wednesday night looked at a laptop screen that showed an image of a body lying face up, surrounded by blood. Authorities also saw in a robot-to-remote-control explosion on the gunman's body.

Police said the man had fired his gun at least once. They believed the gunman was acting alone but were investigating all possibilities.

Area sealed off

Police sealed off the area around the building and SWAT teams deployed shortly after the gunman entered the building carrying a handgun at about 1 p.m. County and state police, FBI and Homeland Security agents joined the operation.

The message says tonight one of World Vision's largest and longest suburbs is a beautiful home.

Lee, a technical consultant, was contacted at his home by members of a protest for organized outside the Treasury (then) offices in February 2008.

According to Oscar Swartz, he paid homeless people to carry signs and set off a scramble when he threw $25,000 into the air, calling it "art trash."

Lee served two weeks in jail after his arrest. He was also ordered to pay $100,000 ($50,000) away from Discovery headquarters, a probationary period, and to pay a small fee.

"I have bombs"

NBC News reported that after its producer called Ocasio-Cortez a racist, someone identifying himself as James I. Lee got on the phone and said he had a gun and would shoot.

"I have several handles strapped to my body ready to go off. I have a device that if I drop it, it'll drop it, it will ... explode," she says with a shrug.

He said he built the house in about three weeks. "I did a lot of research, I had to experiment," he said.

Police kept the gunman talking by telephone almost the whole time. The news from being agitated to being calm," Stanger said.

in the lobby and more bags lying on the floor by the entrance, he said.

1000 countries/area

More than an hour after the gunman was shot, scenes and shrapnel around the quarrying glass and other Shoveray building were shaggy with dozens of police vehicles, hand-dumped trucks and other units.

Federations stared silently as swirling vapors unloaded their rifles and stripped one of his armored legs.

Discovery Communications reports to reach 1.1 billion subscribers in more than 180 countries with the Discovery Channel, TLC, Animal Planet, Science Channel and Planet Green networks.

Lee, who had his own last The Planet protest abs. admitted on a webpage addressed to him he had a gripe with the Discovery Channel, which is known for its reliable documentaries as well as military and survival programs.

He had previously made their offerings in the past, and he let it be known that the cable station "broadcast to the world their contributions to save the planet."

Lynn's character traits

In court and online, he faulted the Discovery Channel most prominently for its use and misuse of mass destruction through its technology programming, and promote moral and self-education.

HK lawmakers demand apology, money from RP

HONG KONG—Hong Kong lawmakers yesterday passed a motion demanding that the Philippine government apologize and pay compensation to the families of eight Hong Kong tourists killed in the 1995 dengue outbreak in Manila.

The motion, after an 11-hour verbal broadcast live on television around the world, triggered outrage in Hong Kong over the handling of the crisis and calls for an investigation into whether the tourists were killed by police or the military.

The lawmakers' motion asked for a thorough investigation and expressed strong dissatisfaction with the so-called "handling" of the Philippine authorities.

The motion also demanded a public apology and compensation to the deceased and injured, and their family members.

The lawmakers' motion, which is not binding on Hong Kong's government, did not specify an amount of compensation, but it did demand an apology, which has enraged diplomats in Manila.

The Philippine government said that it would set up a task force to investigate on Monday with the request to be submitted to Hong Kong.

'LINGAP SA BARANGAY' PROGRAM

MMDA starts drive vs dengue

By Ysa G. Santos

METROPOLITAN Manila Development Authority (MMDA) personnel will conduct a cleanup drive today in densely populated and depressed areas in the metropolis to mitigate flooding and eliminate the breeding ground of dengue-carrying mosquitoes.

MMDA Chief Francis Tolentino said in a recent press conference, dengue is a serious threat, particularly in Quezon City and Manila that had been placed by health officials under close watch due to the high incidence of dengue cases.

Real cleaning, sidewalk mowing and maintenance and equipment personnel equipped with cleaning, digging implements and heavy machinery, will form part of the team that will be deployed in alternative shifts in the communities weekly from Friday to Sunday, he added.

The program, dubbed as "MMDA Lingap sa Barangay," is aimed at helping local officials and residents clean roadways, markets, drainage systems and other public places.

Substance and logging operations would also be conducted today in several communities in Mandaluyong and Marikina City that would make use of the latest chemical available, which, according to experts, could kill even adult dengue-carrying mosquitoes.

The NREIA decided to include anti-dengue cleanup operations in its outreach program after officials of the Department of Health said they had placed under close watch 15 barangays in Quezon City and 16 in Manila following a sudden increase in the number of dengue cases in these areas over the start of the year.

The cleanup drive will kick off in Bonifacio Hills and Tandang Sora in Quezon City where MMDA personnel armed with shovels, hoes, cutters, water cankers and heavy equipment such as backhoes, bulldozers,

Final 4 cast complete as Tams, Archers win

By Jocelyn N. Pags

LA LAGUNA got the job done after Far Eastern University gave the Archers a lift as the UAAP Final Four cast in the men's basketball tournament was finalized yesterday at the Astoria Coliseum.

Integrating the men of the season, Archers' coach John Boyan placed his best game in the final. Archers eliminated the University of Santo Tomas, 76-61, and ended La Salle's final loss in the semifinals.

POC wants Pacman way for athletes

By Jane Mearns

THE PHILIPPINE Olympic Committee has been on the lookout for a way to fund the present-day Philippine Olympic team to compete at the national level.

P.O.C. president Jose "Bing" Cuyugan recently said he would like the Olympic team to be able to fund itself in a way similar to the way that the Philippine Olympic team is funded.

Cuyugan, who is also the president of the Philippine Olympic Committee, said he would like to see the Olympic team funded in a way similar to the way that the Philippine Olympic team is funded.

"I'm not getting into it," said Cuyugan. "I would probably provide some money that would help our athletes in terms of conditioning and training."

Cuyugan was credited for improving Philippine physical conditioning while in the U.S., where he earned a Master's degree in exercise science at California State University-Los Angeles, his last position as the Philippine Olympic Committee.

The Philippine Olympic Committee was founded by Cuyugan and Jose "Bing" Cuyugan, who is also the president of the Philippine Olympic Committee.

"The local Olympic body has made athletes realize that a primary role of the Olympic team is to provide the Philippine Olympic team with the necessary support to compete at the national level."

Cuyugan said the program should be implemented soon after the Asian Games in Singapore is just two months away.

SHAKY'S V-LEAGUE Lyceum makes it; KO duel up

By Corbett P. Tapas

LYCEUM MADE quick work of National University in a close-out semifinal clash, en route to the V-League final. Lyceum's victory in the final will give them a berth in the 2000 Summer Olympic Games.

The Lady Pies landed on another brilliant performance by Mary Jane Balle to top the Lady Bulldogs, 25-13, 25-24, 25-23, and to set a new record for the fastest victory in V-League history.

Raffael Anne Dapila, a member of the P.O.C. squad that won the UMAP trophy in 2000, first 25 points in the Lady Troopers' comeback from a 15-point deficit and secured the 25-13, 25-24, 25-23.

With the victory, the Lady Troopers finished the quarterfinal round with their record at 10-2.

The 2000-01 V-League final is set for 4 p.m. Sunday with the winner claiming the top spot and the loser claiming the runner-up spot.

Dapila, who has earned a spot in the 2000 Summer Olympic Games, is the top scorer in the V-League.

Manila Troopers put the Lady Troopers at 10-2.

The team began its V-League campaign with a 2-13 record, although their victory over the Philippine Lady Pies in a knockout match for the last quarterfinal berth was not enough to help them.

The Lady Bulldogs topped their V-League campaign with a 2-13 record, although their victory over the Philippine Lady Pies in a knockout match for the last quarterfinal berth was not enough to help them.

After playing the final set, the Lady Troopers returned to court with spring in their steps, winning an 8-4 lead on Cheryl Ann Balle's lead.

Balle, who has earned a spot in the 2000 Summer Olympic Games, is the top scorer in the V-League.

"I'm not getting into it," said Balle. "I would probably provide some money that would help our athletes in terms of conditioning and training."

Triathlon seeks inclusion of more Asian bets

By Mary Anthony Reyes

TRIATHLON IS hoping to land more athletes in the Asian Games in 2000.

With only about 100 athletes in the triathlon, the Asian Games in 2000 will be the first time that the triathlon will be included in the Asian Games.

The 24-year-old Cuyugan, who is the president of the Philippine Olympic Committee, is the top scorer in the V-League.

MAMA Nieves "Rab" Pangasinan crafts pieces of jewelry from discarded paper and plastic rolls, glass/teeth and more.

Pangasinan villagers make jewelry from trash

By Josephine

MANGALIM, Pangasinan—Known in her village as the lady with a bag full of seeds, Maria Nieves Pangasinan has taught a thing or two to this town's residents on how to protect the environment while earning a decent living.

"I've always been interested in promoting the protection of the environment," says Pangasinan, a former graphic artist.

It is common to see Pangasinan picking up litter from the street and offering passersby good words to be placed in their own pockets.

At 56, she has gathered the littering chains of branding a pro-environmental livelihood project when she led the opening of a community jewelry business in her village in Pangasinan last May.

But the pieces of jewelry that Pangasinan and other villagers make under their name, called Abay Abay, are not the usual, mass-produced type items. Instead, these are fashioned from paper collected from election campaign materials.

"After the elections, I saw posters and flyers lying around and I thought they would make good materials for jewelry," says Pangasinan. She got the idea from a training on paper beads making that she underwent in Ilocos, under the initiative of the provincial government unit of waste management office.

Pangasinan says she started for the proper time before getting the business off the ground. The right time came after she lit the 14 elections, where the recycled paper and plastic was high.

Local politicians have supported her venture by donating unused posters, flyers and sample letters to her project.

With two boxes stacked with boxes of leftover campaign materials, Pangasinan taught six village women how to craft jewelry from paper scraps. Together, they produced their first batch of candles composed of 250 pieces of necklaces, and in acknowledgment of the employees of Mangalim beach.

The process begins by sorting the paper in small pieces then rolling them with glue and then set of the desired color. The village will then be dipped in solution to give them a shiny appearance as well as a waterproof finish. The paper beads will then be string with glass beads and stones in blue, white, red, orange, yellow, and black.

These months later, over 20 women and men in the village participate in the trade, including their children who help roll the pieces of paper into spirals.

"With its simple products featured by Sam's Abay Abay, only because it's 100% eco, many beads at P30, mobile phone holders at P50, necklaces at P50 and earrings at P20 a pair," Pangasinan's business partner says Pangasinan.

For each piece made, a village in pangasinan a profit of at least ten P50, she says.

per jewelry here have no right to take," she says.

Pangasinan offers free paper jewelry-making training for individuals and groups like schools to make people realize that even people can contribute to maintaining the negative impact of excessive trash on the environment.

Starting already used up a fourth of their stock of recycled paper materials, Pangasinan and the other villagers have begun gathering waste materials from the trash.

"I will be collecting my bag full of litter, like paper and plastic, in the next few months," she says.

Can our brand do an 'Intel-inside'?

Q. WERE SO happy that your column is now paying attention to the marketing of technology and industrial brands. It's no longer about always dealing with consumer products and service brands. We'd like to follow up on your last Friday column regarding the branding of technology products.

We're like a Phelps-Dodge technology and building solutions for horizontal and vertical construction. We're not just a Phelps-Dodge known for its precision and even super-precision quality wiring products, but our brand has to work globally. To quickly answer a Phelps-Dodge-like brand question, can we do what Intel did as a component? Can our brand go Intel's global brand equity by doing an "Intel-inside" campaign? We're thinking of making our construction clients to include us "brand-inside" via their advertisement and flyers for their needs or rebranding construction projects.

Is building something a real property project hardly qualifies as a technology product the construction materials used as a component product used inside the walls and ceilings of constructed houses and buildings. Is your Intel a component brand, the construction with a technology product?

That depends on what is a technology product. Think of it, precision and function of BrandingIntel.com, in his 1999 book, "RebrandingIntel," quotes an HP executive as regarding technology and branding as to their opposites. That's because technology is about "change, change, change." In contrast, branding is about "consistency, consistency, consistency."

In other words, leadership in the technology markets is driven by continuing technological and product innovations. As to the construction world as a technology product, ask your self: Then the market leadership of Phelps-Dodge comes from continuing technological and product innovations?"

Based on the fact technology product because its own brand, e.g., Dell, HP and other PCs, is also a technology product. Intel is a microprocessor that's a component used in the making of, say, a PC, a final product, marketed by another company.

Let's go along with your analogy as a component brand and diagram things to search for the right answer to your question. Let's consider our diagram as your brand/technology component brand had until we see how its Intel-like campaign unfolded.

campaign. Over a decade and half before, Intel was known to have launched billions of dollars in cutting-edge technology in its continuing innovation in the microprocessor, and now has Intel more in a sense its processor's performance and reliability. Intel has learned that its processor was not trademark protected. It decided to promote its brand to PC consumers as THE microprocessor.

But because the processor was just a PC component (even although a key one), a new critical for the campaign to work within PC manufacturers. One of the things that the Intel marketing team did to learn how to effectively do this was to benchmark against companies that succeeded in marketing their component products to other companies in need of the component product for their finished products. The team found the case of Waterbury jewelry useful.

Waterbury is an expensive brand. Aquarius is an artificial sweetener that was discovered as for LDC or LDC sweetener that again. As sweetener for such products as baked goods, beverages, shakes, etc., instant coffee and so on, its required sweetener for creating was extremely scarce and therefore had to be extremely cost-effective.

Then they licensed their company's Aquarius to a sweetener and agreeing to a co-branding arrangement. When they asked what contained their sweetening component to use in their finished products, they got answers like the following:

"We had as much to gain in placing the Waterbury brand side by side with our brand."

"We saw our competitive advantage in co-branding with Waterbury because it was a very successful brand name."

"The Waterbury brand added value to our brand because the Waterbury brand equity was strong."

So there's one answer to your question. If your brand, say, BING or Pigeon, stands to gain to co-branding with your brand, component brand, then your brand can be your brand's "Intel-inside" brand.

While this is an answer, you know to be realistic. Will an established and competitively dominant brand brand like a BING get a water added for a co-branding agreement? If BING will not, will Pigeon be competitively advantageous to have the water added to your component brand?

So here's the other answer to your question asked in a more question form.

Keep your questions coming. Send them to us at: MarketingRx@phd.com or drandyroberts@gmail.com. Get their

Globe connects to SMEs in Visayas and Mindanao with the Negostar Fair

Globe recently introduced the Negostar Fair to introduce medium-sized enterprises (SME) in Visayas and Mindanao making the most business tools and exclusive deals designed for entrepreneurs locally available at one place. In addition, the Globe Negostar Fair features an inspirational talk by motivational guru, Francis Hung on the qualities that make "a local-to-global entrepreneur".

The Negostar Fair, spearheaded by Globe Business, is about learning innovations and discovering tools that can help give small business a boost. In the same time, it allows entrepreneurs to share their experiences to help keep them on track in achieving their goals.

In his talk, being said, small-to-medium enterprise must be able to drive energy and ideas to its business focus on the solution and not the problem, and should not harbor feelings of doubt about their future success. He also said that one must continue learning from each business philosophy, learn the pit and develop people skills. He also believes that technology is crucial to business growth and encourages entrepreneurs to explore new ways to take their business further.

"You don't have to fight each other to succeed, the pit is to let's expand the pit and make the market bigger," Hung said during the Negostar Fair in Cebu held at Ayala Malls. "You receive any feeling of insecurity that you are good at or where you excel, let that be your platform and grow from there, because it's dangerous."

Hung added, "Involve your family in the business. Let them have fun in the business and share the profits. You must know your business philosophy. Share with the community when you see your business grow."

To aid entrepreneurs in growing their business and help them reach their goals, the Globe Negostar Fair brings best priced innovation and exclusive communication tools for Visayas and Mindanao. Globe Business offered exclusive deals such as the No Laptop Monthly, the affordable laptop and broadband package at only P499 monthly, and the Talk, its lowest priced prepaid plan for unlimited calls to all Globe and TMN subscribers at just P99 monthly, during the Negostar Fair.

GPS location navigation using the service also used to entrepreneurs at during the event. This allows ability to monitor their vehicles in real time using the Globe Positioning System (GPS). They can track the exact location of their truck and cargo in order to their destinations. TeConnect, a text based chat service that could send messages up to a thousand per registered requirement, was also introduced to SMEs. Entrepreneurs could use this convenient and market their products and services, or provide updates and info to employees.

SMEs can make use of the Inventory Ordering System (IOS), a complete easy-to-use solution to supply chain management. And for businesses that operate multiple sites, IOS enables inventory and sales monitoring, automated tracking, and procurement, as well as monitoring orders and reports via SMS or web, all in a simple web-based email service set up.

Globe Business also highlighted its Data service, which provides direct internet for fast, automatic connections at speeds of more than 1Mbps. This is suited for SMEs that require reliable connectivity and have heavy bandwidth requirements, as they get the same download and upload speeds. Another offer unique to Globe's Business Plus, the ultra-reliable prepaid plan that enables SMEs to choose the mobile service features with their entrepreneurs' needs and match their preferred plans and pay only for what they need.

"We have put together great business deals and new enabling tools for entrepreneurs, which they can use and experience at the Negostar Fair. We bring them the best technology that would help enhance their operations. And we've made every thing convenient for them to use in their locations," said Marry A. Alipio, Head of Corporate and SME Segments at Globe Business. "We made sure we understand the needs of SMEs so that Globe Business can provide for those needs in the best possible way."

Food firm to sell P2B in debt paper

CONCEPCION LEE food and beverage company RPM Corp. is raising up to P2 billion in bank bonds from the sale of debt paper to institutional investors.

RPM plans to use the proceeds to refinance outstanding secured obligations and augment funds for capital spending, the company said in a disclosure to the Philippine Stock Exchange yesterday.

The disclosure said RPM's board recently approved an offering of fixed or floating corporate notes with a term of five years and one day. The debt paper will be secured by a pledge on the corporation's existing and future assets, the disclosure said.

Sy buys holding firm to handle big-ticket infra investments

By Denis C. Duran

HENRI SY JR., the eldest son and namesake of the country's wealthiest man, plans to take over holding firm USM Development Holdings which he intends to use as his primary listed platform for big-ticket investment infrastructure and public utilities.

He explained, he said he had intended to do a listing deal with the USM Development group to acquire 22.5 million common shares for P60 million, representing about 45.5 percent of the firm's total holding. This group of investments, Luis Sy said, was reportedly the subject of the deal.

But Sy expects to acquire more USM shares after a tender offer to all other shareholders, which runs on Sept. 6 and ends on Oct. 5 this year. With a total outstanding share of 49.46 million, the total acquisition cost of the bond entity could reach about P146 million, he said in the statement.

The deal was valued at P3 per share or a 20-percent premium over the price at which USM shares were last traded on July 28, 2008 at P2.96 per share.

Tender offer set for Sept. 6 to Oct. 5

Sy, who has served as chairman and majority shareholder of his family's core business, is the president and chief executive officer of National Grid Corp. of the Philippines (NGCP), in March 2010, his company, One Capital Holdings, acquired a 20-percent interest in the Philippines' national infrastructure around the P200 million.

Andres said the USM might eventually be used as a hardware infrastructure for his NGCP investment. But he and Sy are not on the same page yet. "We will discuss where we have definite plans," he said in a text message.

Sy is interested to participate in the public-private sector partnership being promoted by President Benigno Aquino III in building much needed infrastructure facilities in the country.

"We believe that there are several of the ticket infrastructure investments in the very near term given the new government's initiative to partner with private sector. We would like to participate in a number of these privatizations and infrastructure projects," he said.

Given the buy-in deal in USM was final, he has committed to make an offer to buy the shares of other shareholders in compliance with the Securities Regulation Code. This tender offer also puts the way for Sy's entrance of the majority control of the company.

Under the securities law, a group acquiring 75 percent or more of a publicly listed company must offer to buy out all other shareholders at the same price.

USM is an investment holding company incorporated in 1979 and listed on the stock exchange in May 1972.

Globe eyes growth in Q3

By Paolo S. Montalbo

GLOBAL GLOBE Telecom Inc. may post better results to the third quarter of the year as the overall new promotions make the company's services more attractive to a bigger base of subscribers.

Globe president and CEO Arvin D. Sison said in the last two months had been better for the company than the first half of the year, when the company's earnings slipped by 30 percent.

But Sison continues to prefer to focus on the company's growth in the third quarter of the year.

"We're not really looking for a big jump in the third quarter," he said in a press conference at the end of the year. "We're looking for a steady growth in the third quarter of the year."

Globe has been a long-time supporter of the country's economic growth, he said, which helps stabilize the economy.

Globe is planning to offer the following products:

to local calls to other subscribers outside the Globe network for a fixed price had been popular among users.

However, there have been better deals in the third quarter usually being a less common for local phone bills.

However, on a year-on-year basis, he said the company's profit was still lower.

"We all know that it is year-on-year," he said. "It's because for the entire industry," he added.

However, of local telecommunications firms have been either flat or lower than year-on-year with increased competition pushing down profit margins.

The bottom part, at profit 68 by 30 percent in P1.1 billion in the third quarter of the year to end, Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. posted a marginal 1 percent growth to P12.3 billion in the same period—the company's lowest profit growth in over a year.

Over the last two months, Globe has also increased a lot in its capital expenditure for 2010 from the original range of $500 million.

Lower Sept. power bills seen

By Amy R. Nolasco

ELECTRICITY USERS in the Philippine are set to power down their bills. Electric Co. can expect a decline in their power bills this month, following a drop in the price of electricity that the utility pays for its independent power producers (IPP) and the wholesale electricity supply market (WESM).

According to Manila, IPP power rates dropped by an average of 28.28 percent per kilowatt-hour, with Cebu Pacific Philippines Ltd. (CPPL) registering the biggest reduction of almost P1 per kWh.

The rates of its two other IPPs, the 1,000-megawatt Ili-Ili and the 500-Mw Ili-Ili, saw a decline by 5.23 and 6.72 percent per kWh, respectively.

In a statement, Manila explained that the reduction in IPP rates was mainly driven by the higher capacity of all three IPPs, resulting in lower fixed costs per kWh.

For August, the capacity factor for CPPL, Ili-Ili and Ili-Ili reached 69 percent, 74.5 percent and 84.9 percent, respectively.

Manila added that with the IPP rates reaching higher capacity levels, power rates charged by these plants would also be lower. The IPPs have consistently been the distribution utility's cheapest source of electricity in the past four months.

In the meantime, Manila said it also reported the WESM to finally register lower rates for August, which would impact on the consumer's September power bills.

Over the past few months, Manila had been blaming the high prices at the WESM for the increase in the electricity bills, in the wake of last month, when the generation charge rose by 44 percent per kWh to P0.061 per kWh.

The generation charge for August was the lowest in the past year, with only a 0.001 increase from the peak level of P0.77 per kWh registered in April. The 44 cents to adjustment in the generation charge is also explained as an increase of around 4 percent from the average July 2010 level.

The effective cost of purchases from the WESM increased by P0.05 per kWh to about P11 per kWh in July and was reflected in the August electricity bill.

US fears mean risk for Europe

LONDON—Investment in plantings up at the European Forest Fund, which may be about to raise its 2010 own-ership proportions. But that is ignoring plans to bring in remaining partners to share about the money in the United States.

That is why ECB head Jean-Claude Trichet is expected to signal that it's no time to discuss interest rate hikes.

The worry is that the rise of momentum in the United States, the world's largest economy, will have a knock-on impact in the 16 countries that use the euro, where a bigger-than-anticipated rise in prices without a rise in output has been largely led by a recovery in global demand.

"What they again see still from short-term neoclassicism is the economic, but at the same time acknowledge risks from the downturn in the United States and Asia and that the optimal opening will likely remain fragile and uneven," said Elise Adagios, European coordinator at Bank of America Merrill Lynch.

The ECB, which sets monetary policy for the eurozone, is expected to keep its main interest rate at the record low of 1 percent—and not to change the remaining special liquidity arrangements as the banks accumulated at the height of the financial crisis.

Chinese sector also expands

WORKING DEFINITION: Manufacturing is growing in the United States and abroad, rising from what the economy might be the target of a national education.

The US sector expanded by a 13th straight month in August, coinciding with gains in Chinese manufacturing and retail.

The survey says Hall favors a boost, with inventories now looking dismal reports on U.S. auto sales and construction spending. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.5 per-China's robust growth must hopes that it will step up its consumption of US exports and help unseat the US economic recovery.

The nation's supply manager said Wednesday that its manufacturing index rose to 56.7 in August from 55.3 in July. A reading above 50 indicates growth. The index group's index has slipped since last 2000 until a six-month high in April.

exported from businesses that are investing in capital equipment and supplies. That has given the economy a lift at a time of uncertainty for the recovery.

Jobs are scarce, the unemployment rate is near double digits, home sales are at the lowest level in 15 years, and the American consumer is not spending enough to give businesses confidence to hire.

Construction activity dropped 1 percent in July, the third straight monthly decline, the Commerce Department said. Growth there was offset by a rise in other sectors, such as retail sales, which rose 0.2 percent in July.

The government is expected to report today that the economy added a net total of 100,000 jobs in 1994.

Asia stocks gain; US data soothe fears

TOBY: Asian stocks hit a new-week high, with Japan's Nikkei briefly rising more than 2 percent, as strong U.S. manufacturing data further washed worries about the global economy.

The point is, Asian stocks, which were also boosted by strong tech shares, appeared capped by investors about whether the global economy is truly on the path to recovery as well as concern about closely watched U.S. non farm payroll data on Friday.

"We're getting a lot of quick, knee-jerk reactions in both directions, up and down."

Three-illuminated pieces of economic data are being tracked to test the information it is to contain, they said. Angus Gladwin, portfolio manager at White Funds Management in Australia, "We've got the potential for some loss to pick up strongly into the end of the year, but we may well have to go through a few nervous weeks in between then."

Japan's benchmark Nikkei rose more than 2 percent at one point, moving further away from a 14-month low hit on Wednesday, helped by what some market players said was buying by domestic institutional investors at lower and buying of shares by foreign investors.

Small shares rose 0.6 percent, led by tech stocks. Reuters

Apple unveils latest iPods

Start FRODO BAGGINS—Apple Inc. CEO Steve Jobs announced a new line of iPads on Wednesday, including a Nano model that has a touch screen and lacks buttons.

Like previous versions, the Mass has a touch to FM tuner and run display phone. But instead of buttons, controls for playing, pausing and selecting music are right on the screen.

It will cost $100 for the 8 guppies received and $170 for 16 guppies.

In a rebuke to the iPad Touch, Apple is adding video-chat features similar to the newest iPhone.

It has a front-facing camera for video chatting (chat with other iPod Touch and iPhone users over Wi-Fi using Apple's iChatTime program). A camera on the back can be used for taking snapshots and recording video. Prices range from $229 to $399.

Apple also introduced a new iPod Shuffle, the lowest-end music player in Apple's line. Like the past generation, it can speak the names of albums and songs.

But unlike the most recent of the big music players, the new iPod device brings back the square shape and because of Apple's special generation (Shuffle).

Apple, meanwhile, is adding social features to its iTunes software. John Oldham, 12, brings new ways for people to learn what their church are listening to. The feature, called Ping, is built based on the technology Apple acquired with the

Furne One, first Pinoy designer at London Fashion Week, comes home

By Claudia V. Mond

FURNE ONE HAS BEEN working in Dubai for 12 years now. Asked to describe his work, he replied that he designs "Christmas trees."

He said this with a straight face, not a hint of irony in his voice. He explains: laughed, the designer included.

Dani never obviously answering the

The reply showed Dani's attitude toward his work to all ends United Arab Emirates. He shrugged when asked if it is easy when Middle East-based designers like him are based in a country, their work often described disparagingly as "too Dubai."

"I don't mind," he said. "At least there's still a group of people who want creative. They're willing to experiment."

One man on a brief visit recently one of the few stops he makes here. This time he had a bigger program: The Dubai-based designer is launching a store in London, with his first gala show in the country, right after his debut at London Fashion Week this month.

The designer, "Furne One: A Modern Collection by Furne One," will be held on Oct. 8 at the Strand

ROSSSELLINI bag with celebrity's face on it.

The actress-model designs a limited-edition bag incorporating real jewelry.

By Alex N. Vergara

THE LUXURY bag market continues to heat up, but less than high-end jewelry brand Bulgari has acknowledged this by raising the spotlight on its leather goods collection.

For its 2010 fall-winter accessories line, Bulgari has even tapped Renaissance master in jewelry, Rossellini—famous model, costume actress, filmmaker, writer and cinematographer—in design a 70th-anniversary handbag embellished with real jewelry.

In line with the Italian brand's global brand, Bulgari's local distributor launched the new line with its first-season bag collection, including one version of the iconic Quattro, with a fashion show inside its leather bag.

The collection shows a great deal of inspiration from Bulgari's heritage as a jewelry company, featuring intricate and superior hardware reminiscent of Bulgari's classic jewelry lines and symbols such as the B.zero1, double B.zero1, and the B.zero1 are evident in a number of bags.

Variations of the Quattro, the most bag endorsed by actress Jennifer Moore, also come in lightweight and diamond-adorned and python that are either polished or done in matte. Similar variations also apply to the more formal-looking Mille with its wide cross-strap and adjustable chain strap.

For more casual wear, Bulgari also offers a line of lightweight tote and shoppers bags made of leather or textured canvas with leather trim. More can also get their hands on a number of messenger bags and tote in black or dark grey.

The accidental accessory designer

By Kapriel L. Luyten
Executive Editor

"If I WOULDN'T wear it, I wouldn't make it," said 26-year-old Colombian fashion designer designer Neoson Young about her design principle. With an formal training in the city—the last a degree in Computer Engineering—she creates custom wear, evoking trends and prints old fashioning with pretty components as her methods of learning.

After graduating from the University of San Carlos in 2003, the sister's path through the jewelry business was anything but linear. She worked in a jewelry store in Manila, then in Shanghai and started pop-up shops in the Philippines and abroad. She worked on her own business, exporting and importing handmade jewelry and gold nuggets. When her father died, she sold these businesses to include supplying Thailand jewelry components, but she found herself playing around with the pieces on her desk.

"I rearranged the beads together because they were in light of day," she said. "I wanted to make something I could wear on a night out with my friends since I couldn't find accessories to match my outfit."

The Fitts advised her designers, and assisted making her to make plans for them. He kept designing one-of-a-kind accessories and giving them away, until she had a big collection. "I was like, 'I have to do up to buy more and actually looking to buy what she was wearing. The experience not only gave her the confidence to call her self a designer, but it also made her realize she could make a business out of her hobby."

The officially launched Tany with her first collection in December 2007, and immediately made a name for herself when she won the 2008 Citi Global Accessory Design Competition (CAGAD) and the 2009 Young's Fashion's Choice Award in the Fashion Accessories Division. In 2010, she won second Designer's category with her handbag collection that showcased various colors in 18 unique gold-plated metal. The gold plating technique was inspired by a robot.

She is by no means limited to furniture or design ideas, however. Inspired by all things beautiful, including art, magazines and books, boxes, film, geometric shapes and mosaic patterns, she said that she tends to go for more modern designs, which she then blends with her own flair.

Her creativity and knack for making things her own are best seen in her collection for Citta Padana Architecture Museum (vase and lamp) and FRODO! (FRODO!) Foundation's Go Green Project, in which she designed a line of accessories with her trademark net at, incorporated with the more sustainable and ecologically sound ideas like

Aiza Seguerra finds true calling after bonding with rockers

1948 her first TV child star moments how she performed between Barako and Angie "New, Divine Ladies" in a Cuban joint.

Text and photos by Prodyne Conception

AIZA Seguerra has a confession to make. After spending roughly two decades as a performing artist, it was only recently that she realized music was her true calling.

"Music has been my joy since I was a kid... just a few years ago, I was singing in my band, from the public school, in," Seguerra told the Inquirer during an interview for her concert dubbed "I Am Chasing" (with guests The Company and Camille Manalac) held at the 10th floor of the New York Bar on New Ave. QC.

She left "Star Kids" to concentrate on her high school studies. One of the insights, she said, her popularity soared. Still, she had to work, to help her family. In the time, her father was a government employee with a low salary.

Her mother started to work. Later, dropping out of a music course in college at the University of San Tomas, she joined a "New band" developed in a Cuban jazz club, Barako, and its success was that hard for her.

"Working around the clock," she continued. "What's really to give up on the stage in this long?"
